

3

湿原：落石（オチイシ：根室）

3

4

湿原：ヤチボウズ（釧路）

4

湿原：釧路川

湿原：沼ノ原湿原

湿原を食べる：クランベリーの収穫

湿原を食べる：クランベリー

The Cranberry Bog

Cranberries are among the few natives of Massachusetts. The plant has been introduced to other parts of the world, but the cranberry bog is a product of the New England climate. The bog is a wet, acidic soil that is rich in organic matter. The cranberry plant grows in this soil and produces a fruit that is used for food and medicine.

From other bogs, cranberries are generally sent to the bog, and produced in the morning. The bog is a wet, acidic soil that is rich in organic matter. The cranberry plant grows in this soil and produces a fruit that is used for food and medicine.

There are also other bogs in the world, but the cranberry bog is a product of the New England climate. The bog is a wet, acidic soil that is rich in organic matter. The cranberry plant grows in this soil and produces a fruit that is used for food and medicine.

湿原を食べる：ワイルドライス

琵琶湖：佃煮

片野鴨池（石川県）

野付半島と打瀬舟 1

